Wednesday 27th January

I am very excited for our zoom call today, are you? Hopefully we will all get the chance to say hello, chat and ask each other questions.

Another new sound in phonics today, qu. Watch the video on the website to get yourself familiar with the sound. When you are saying qu try and move your hands like a duck saying qu-qu-qu-quack! Remember q always has an u next to it when you are writing. What words can you think of that have a qu in them? Next week we are also going to look at some 'red' words.

I hope you had fun making patterns yesterday, what did you use to make different patterns? Today we are going to think about time. To start lets think of 2 key times, nighttime and daytime.

Can you think of all the different things you do at these times? Draw some pictures to show what you can do at nighttime and daytime. Can you see stars in the daytime? Can you see sunshine at nighttime? Do you normally hear an owl during the day? Do streetlights normally come on during daytime?

Rather than moving, let's do some listening today. Pick a story off https://www.storylineonline.net/ to watch and listen to.

Ready for our zoom call now? We are looking to seeing your happy faces!

That was good fun wasn't it?!

This afternoon spend some time outside (weather depending!) because it was so wet and windy last Wednesday, we stayed inside in school rather than going in the woods. If it is wet why not put on some wet weather gear and go and splash in some puddles and dance in the rain? Afterwards dry off and read some of your school book or a book from home.

I may read my favorite book when I get home too!

Mrs Edlin

Triceratops fossil